

To W. F. Garrison.

Leicester,
May 29/67.

Dear Wendell;

51 Immediately on receiving your last, I sent it to E. Quincy, & asked him (as I was not going to Boston this week) to look in at Mr. Codman's office, & get of him your previous letter, if still in his hands. E. Q. has written me in reply & said he sh^d. probably go into town next morning (Sat. last), & w^d. go into Mr. Codman's. —

He says (just as I felt) "I do not recollect anything in W. F. G.'s letter disrespectful to W. F., or such as should give him offence." —

For my part I thought you had been carefully guarded every word.

— E. Q. adds, he hopes "no mischief is done" — but that, unpleasant as it would be to you to have any difference ~~between~~ with W.P., your "first duty is clearly to your father's"

— I hear nothing from him since. — It is almost time, I suppose, to get a letter from your father. If he had me ready to leave at Queensdown, — quite time.

Truly Yrs
